

The Department of Geospatial and Space Technology is one of the five Departments in the School of Engineering and located in the Main Campus. It is on the third floor of the American Wing building.

The Department of Geospatial and Space Technology offers a Bachelors Degree program in Geospatial Engineering, two Masters Degree programs namely Master of Science in Geographical Information Systems and Master of Science in Surveying, currently under review. The Department is also offering PhD programs in the various fields of geospatial engineering.